Restorationism in the Holiness Movement in the Late Nineteenth and Early Twentieth Centuries

Steven L. Ware

This work focuses on the restorationist consciousness which was apparent among holiness groups during the decades of their primary theological and ecclesiastical formation, roughly the period 1880-1920. More specifically, it focuses on the restorationism prevalent among the more radical sectors of the movement—among those "come-outers" and "put-outers" who left the churches of their upbringing and became early leaders in the new, specifically holiness church bodies.
