The Rose Chalet specializes in wedding days that give couples the perfect way to start their Happily Ever Afters. But when owner Rose Martin discovers a nearby business could be specializing in breaking up couples, she calls on her friends and staff to help find out what's going on.

Wife is the last thing K.D. Hamilton wants to be. Ever. But this undercover opportunity has the potential to advance her law enforcement career, so she'll have the wedding she never imagined.

Eric Larkin has been through one wedding . . . and the disillusionment of a divorce. He's not ready for another. But there are couples trying to make their marriages work who are being taken advantage of, and he has to do something about it.

A marriage of convenience turns into a divorce of convenience turns into ... what neither of them ever expected in this caper of a wedding romance!

K.D. and Eric have one week. One week . . .

To learn enough about each other to pass as a married couple.

To experience the best pretend wedding the pros at the Rose Chalet can create as convincing background for their undercover roles.

To discover why too many couples who go to Marriage-Save for help end up with an Unhappily Forever.

. . . And to find out what kind of ever-after can possibly follow a make-believe wedding.
